GRAPE ROT ANDTOMATO BLIGHT

In many places throughout the state grapes are about the only fruit that was left by the frost and now the grapes are beginning to rot. Grape rot, as well as tomato blight and tomato leaf spot, may be controlled by spraying two or three times with bordeaux at intervals of ten days.

Small amounts of bordeaux may be made as follows: Dissolve one ounce of copper sulphate, commonly known as blue stone or as blue vitriol in one-half gallon of water dissolve one and one-half ounce of hydrated lime in another one-half gallon of water; then pour the two solutions together and spray at once.

There are many proprietary spray mixtures containing copper sulphate on the market. Some of these mixtures give satisfactory results.

PLANT FLOWERINGPERENNIAL SEED NOW

Now is the time to plant the seed of flowering perennials such as columbine, larkspur, sweet William, pinks, coreopsis, hollyhocks, and Canterbury bells. The seeds should be planted in rows four or five inches apart either in a box in a sheltered place or in a cold frame covered with slats. When the plants have grown two or three leaves they should be transplanted to places desired. Such plants make a desirable growth before winter and bloom the following season. They should be mulched or otherwise partially protected during the winter.

WAR ON CHINCH BUGS

Chinch bugs in considerable numbers have occurred in northwestern and western part of the state. The extension entomologist from the College of Agriculture and the county agricultural agents are co-operating with the United States Department of Agriculture in waging war on the pests.

A 4-page Government circular describing the pests and giving approved methods of control is being distributed in sections affected. The circular may be secured by writing to the Extension Service, Ohio State University, Columbus. The bugs are now traveling on foot from the wheat fields to the corn fields.
